

Mahogania Smith

A Passionate Advocate for Healthy Marriages

Mahogania Smith is a devoted professional with a deep commitment to helping others and fostering healthy marriages. Growing up in Athens, Georgia, she cultivated a strong work ethic and a dedication to excellence from an early age.

She earned her graduate degree from the University of Georgia, becoming a Licensed Social Worker. While her education provided her with essential tools for navigating the social work field, it was her life experiences that truly shaped her into a powerful advocate for the individuals and families she supports.

Mahogania wears many hats—wife, mother, sister, friend, and pioneer, to name just a few—but her most important role is that of a servant in the kingdom of Christ. As the founder and CEO of Restoration and Reformation Faith-Based Consulting, she collaborates with her husband and other remarkable partners to help couples strengthen their relationships in Christ. Their mission is to assist both married couples and those aspiring to marry in overcoming challenges, equipping them with the wisdom and tools needed to resist the adversary's attempts to undermine God-ordained unions. Their motto is, “We’re not the experts; we’re the examples.”

In her personal life, Mahogania enjoys sharing and spreading God’s Word, traveling, and cherishing quality time with family and friends. She remains dedicated to both spiritual and professional growth, continuously seeking opportunities to learn and make a meaningful impact.
